

DEFECT IDENTIFICATION OF STRUCTURAL MATERIALS UNDER TRANSIENT HEAT FLOW

Summary: In the paper the problem of defect identification in structural materials, using the analysis of time varying temperature caused by constant and variable heat loads, is considered. The behavior of the structure was analyzed using the finite element method and to the implementation of the minimization processes of the identification functional, hybrid evolutionary algorithm was used.

Keywords: defect identification, evolutionary algorithms